JOHN McCULLOUGH.

LEGY READ AT THE DEDICATION OF THE MON-UMENT, MOUNT MORIAH CEMETERY, PHILAS

There, in thy grandeur, calm and splendid,-God's peace on that imperial brow.— Thou standest, grief and trouble ended.

Yet, ence again the air is cloven With joyous tumult of acclaim; And round thee here, with tender longing, As of they did in days of old. The comrades of thy soul come thronging. Who nover knew thee stern or cold.

Why waits, in frozen silence sleeping. The smile that made our hearts rejoice? By what strange mood of reverie haunted Art thou, the gentle, grown austere? To know thee gone, yet think thee here?

Ah, fond pretence! ah, sweet beguiling! There's no more grief and no more smiling For thee, henceforth, beneath the sun. In manhood's noon thy summons found thee In glory's blaze, on fortune's height, Trailed the black robe of doom around thee,

This but the shadow of a vision Our mourning souls alone can see, That pierce through death to realms elysian, More hallowed now because of thee! Of thy colossal trance of pain, Were now so selfish, in affection, To wish thee back from Heaven again!

There must be, in those boundless spaces, Where thy great spirit wanders free, Abodes of bliss, enchanted places, That only Love's white angels see! And sure if heavenly kindness showered On every sufferer 'neath the sun Shows any human spirit dowered With love angelle, thou wert one!

In all the glorie a would of art, There's no sweet thought or noble feeling That throbbed not in thy manly heart ! There's no strong flight of aspiration, No reverent dream of realms divine, No pulse, no thrill, no proud elation Of god-like power, that was not thine!

So stand forever, joyless, painless, Supreme alike o'er smiles and tears, Thou true man's image, strong and stainless, Unchanged through all the changing years,-While Fame's blue crystal o'er thee bending With honor's gems shall blaze and burn. And rose and lily round thee blending Adorn and bless thy hallowed urn I

While summer days are long and lonely, While autumn sunshine seems to weep, While midnight hours are bleak, and only The stars and clouds their vigils keep, All gentle things that live shall moan thee, All fond regrets forever wake-For earth is happier to have known thee, And Heaven is sweeter for thy sake.

J. H. SHORTHOUSE, author of "John Inglesant," "Sir Percival," &c. 12mo, #1.

ent. Its action is all within the human breast. . . . The story is told with unfalling delicacy and with un-flagging power. Its effect is spiritualizing, its psychological finesse, its dramatic adroitness, its dextrous rela-tion and avoidance of perils, its correct and perspicuous diction, its purity, tenderness and grace, combine to constitute it an absorbing romance and a strengthening force in a period of distressing and destructive fiction.—(Mararet F. CLOSING PRICES OF PHILADELPHIA STOCKS.

BY A DOLEFUL REPORT.

Wednesday, Nov. 28-p. After an opening of business at the Stock Exchange at full figures, backed by an important London buying, which seemed promising, the market suffered from the effect of the utterances of a man named Cable, who is supposed to be the president of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad Company. The whole market drifted into a follower of Rock Island stock. That stock was the factor and leader of the day. R. R. Cable, the president of the Rock Island Company, is not one of those railway managers that ever speak ill of his property. But he recently has permitted himself to be quoted as an authority for railway situation. We charge Mr. Cable with nothing; but the language credited to him is of that sort of mournful redemption.

The customs receipts were $668,218 and the internal revenue receipts were $170,556.

To-day's Washington Treasury statement of cash on hand and deposits in bank compares with the figures of the last previous statement as

Deposits in banks 46,491,994 47,482,394 Inc. 990,400

Net cash balances $304,676,281 $305,400,223 Inc. $729,942

The foreign exchanges were dull and weak at quotations for business as follows: Bankers' bills, $4 84 3-4 and $4 88 for long and short sterling respectively; 5.21 1-4 and 5.17 1-2 for francs: 95 1-4 and 95 7-8 for reichmarks: 40 and 40 1-4 for guilders.

In London British consols were firm at 98 11-16 and 96 13-16 respectively for money and account. The Bank of England lost £100,000 bullion on foreign balances. Bar silver was steady at 43d. per ounce English standard, and Indian Council bills were allotted at a decline of 3-32d. per rupee. The open market rate for discount continued to rule at 4 per cent. American railways early sold lower than the equivalents of last evening's home quotations, but the market improved and ruled strong to the close. At Paris French 3 per cents rose to $2.87 1-2, and sight exchange on London was firm at 25.31 francs to the £.
